Group To Study Business Abroad

Six university students take off from Detroit Airport August 5, to begin the first stage of a European trip that will take them to seven countries and eleven major cities in five weeks. The purpose of their trip is to study International business operations on location and observe some of the problems of American businesses abroad.

Among the 20 American branches and affiliates that the students will be visiting are Burroughs Machines in London, National Cash Register in Amsterdam, Du Pont in Stockholm, The Chase Manhattan Bank in Frankfurt and Sears, Roebuck in Barcelona. These company visits will be supplemented by a two day briefing at the University, August 3 - 4 and lectures at universities and American embassies throughout Europe.

The tour is under the direction of Dr. John R. Davidson, professor of Marketing who arranged the trip.

One of the tour members, David Uber, senior in the College of Business sums up his reasons for participating in the Summer Seminar Abroad in this way. "I believe this trip will give me a unique opportunity to develop greater understanding and appreciation of International business as it affects the world economy.

The participants in the Summer Seminar are: John Boos, Fosteria, Robert Brooke, Galion, Neil Danziger, Fremont, Roger Holliday, London, England and David Uber, Warren. The five University students are enrolled in the College of Business Administration.

Two Join Placement

Charles D. Alexander

Thomas P. Willett

Two promotions and two new appointments have been made in the University placement office, James L. Galloway, placement director, has announced.

Promoted to assistant director were Karel S. King, teacher placement officer, and Glenn T. Rosenthal, placement assistant.

Miss King, a 1959 University graduate, is a former president of the Ohio Chapter of the Association for School, College, and University Staffing. She also has membership in various other professional groups.

Mr. Rosenthal, a former teacher at Westlake, O., is a former employee of the National Cash Register Company. He is a 1962 Bowling Green graduate.

Joining the placement staff are Charles D. Alexander, a veteran Michigan educator, and Thomas P. Willett, a 1967 University graduate.

Mr. Alexander's new position in the area of career information will primarily involve teacher placement.

He received the bachelor of science degree from Central Michigan University in 1951 and the master of arts degree from Michigan State University in 1958, where he is now completing doctoral work.

Mr. Willett, who will be a career counselor, will work to extend career counseling programs to high school students.

He also will continue as director for WBGU-TV, Bowling Green's educational television station. A graduate of York High School, Clyde, O., he received the bachelor of science degree from Bowling Green in June.

Overloaded Power Supply Cited As Possible Cause In July 25 Explosion, Fire

An overloaded manual disconnect switch was cited by F. Eugene Beatty, University director of buildings and facilities, as a major contributory factor in the July 25 explosion that crippled the University power system for almost 24 hours.

"The most likely cause of the electrical explosion was in the manual disconnect switch, but it could have been any combination of causes," said Mr. Beatty.

Mr. Beatty listed four suspected causes of the fire but did not rule out the unforeseen variables that accompany a fire of this nature.

1. A possible electrical storm fracture to the power cables the night before the explosion.

2. Water streaming down the cables into the disconnect switch, which formed an electrical arch, causing the explosion.

3. A concurrent overload of power used in the cooling units.

4. A faulty disconnect switch, vulnerable to the slightest hazard.

"At the time of the mishap, the University was using underground cables to transmit power to the hub of campus. The explosion knocked these out, resulting in the temporary installation of overhead cables. The overhead cables offer more power to the University than the underground type, said Beatty.

"The pole lines will be used until another adjustment can be made, added Beatty, to create another power source." The buildings director stated that a new power source will serve as a third feeder to serve the Harshman-Kreischer area and other facilities to be built on the east side of campus". Mr. Beatty continued,

There is no official estimate of the physical damage to the maintenance building but Beatty said that the new lines erected following the explosion cost around $10,000.

"There are no plans in the future to move the power supply unit from its present position but there is a possibility the maintenance building will be re-styled," concluded Mr. Beatty.

Termed Hazard Four Years Ago

The increase in summer air conditioning units in new facilities increased the University's demand for electricity nearly one-third before the Maintenance Bldg. explosion July 26.

The University was warned by city officials four years ago that a problem of overloading existed. At that time, only one large feeder cable, located in the maintenance building was supplying the power to campus. Following the warning, additional underground lines were added, Mr. Beatty said.

The city sent another warning to the University two years ago. Mr. Beatty said the University responded to the warning by installing another feeder line at the heating plant, which took about 20 per cent of the demand from the two other cables.

Honorary Bids For Recognition

A campus evaluation this fall by the National Council Evaluation Committee will be one of the final phases of the application procedure for membership into the National Mortar Board Organization, announced Fayetta Paulsen, dean of women.

The membership application is a bid by the local honor society, Cap and Gown, to become affiliated with the national organization.

"The application for national recognition began three years ago, with formal application for membership," said Dean Paulsen.

"Following this, she continued, was the first evaluation period by the National Evaluation Committee.

On the recommendation of the National Evaluation Committee, the University will file formal petition of acceptance with all member schools.

There are 112 active chapters in the National Board Organization.

Warmest Welcome

This week begins summer pre-registration for all freshmen who will attend the University in the fall.

The News would like to take this opportunity to extend its welcome to the new freshmen and their parents.

New routines, new faces are part of the format. With pre-registration you are kicking open the door to a new and rewarding undergraduate experience. It will begin with first day here and culminate at graduation four years from now.

It is our desire to convey the warmest welcome to you and wish each of you the best of luck in your college career at Bowling Green.

Bouncy Name?

Jerry 3 and the long-range plan-co have endowed the University with a new "bouncy", streamlined name, Pepsi U.

Pepsi U. now has a chance to develop its dynamic image, so long impeded by that portion of its appellation, "state".

Ohio State, Michigan State, Slippery Rock State Teachers College take heed! Your names have no appeal, no dynamic image on the eastern seaboard, and you are destined to become mere back-washes of education.

In past weeks, cities across the nation have burst in racial violence. Newark, two weeks ago, Detroit last week, and who knows this week.

The volatile racial situation is not a spontaneous outbreak of violence. The conflict is deep-rooted in slum conditions, social disorganization, family disorganization and a host of other dysfunctional mechanisms which have ripped away the superficial calm - that is from the white man's point of view - that exists between black and white.

The small minority, who have recently transformed our nation's cities from urban residence and business centers to destruction resembling that of war-torn Europe, have put a sour taste in the mouths of most Americans. The negro cause has been served a serious setback.

Responding to the riots last week, President Johnson spoke to the nation. The result was the formation of a commission to study the nature of the recent civil disorders, and present its preliminary findings to the nation Jan. 1, 1968.

Reports, commissions, and the reliance on the National Guard are only temporary panaceas to the problem that faces all Americans. We are all responsible, whether black or white, for preventing those aspects which may lead to racial hostility on our city streets.

Urban renewal is a handy word amongst the boys in Washington. The fact is that buildings, clean and antiseptic-smelling, only present a surface change to its residents. It is only a matter of time, if not corrected, that social conditions again will become depressed. It only stalls trouble until the inherent condition of depression prevails again.

While Governor Romney accuses President Johnson of playing politics and the Congress vetoes rat extermination programs, present conditions will continue to exist.

It is time for preventative and rehabilitative measures on a large-scale to be instituted. Poverty programs are a start, but it is not a country-wide effort to help the people help their own. We, as Americans must help others to help themselves. The sour taste must be spit out, with a helpful and guiding hand extended to help those in the majority, who in recent weeks have been socially and economically raped by a small few in their number.

'Man In Doghouse' To Open At Huron

A comedy about a worm that turns into a gay old dog will be the next attraction at the air-conditioned Huron Summer Playhouse. Appropriately titled "The Man in the Dog Suit", the play which casts a satirical and sympathetic glance at modern suburban life will open on Tuesday, August 8, for five performances through Saturday.

Tracy J. Davis of Grand Rapids, Mich. and Kathy Collins from Port Huron, Mich. will play the roles in which Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy co-starred when the comedy was first given in New York in 1958. Davis, who will be remembered as Luther Billis in "South Pacific," will be seen as a shy bank clerk who dreams of a life as a forest ranger but is too timid to break out of the comfortable trap in which his in-laws have caged him in a suburb of neat ranch-type houses. Miss Collins, who was seen as Addie Bemis, in "Happy Birthday," will play his wife--loyal but perplexed because he doesn't want to play her family's rules of respectability.

The plot deals with the complication that follows the mild-mannered Milquetoast's discovery that he can exchange his timidity for aggressiveness by slipping into a dog suit--a costume that he had first found would give him a courageous personality when he wore it to a masquerade party.

One comic situation follows another as his rich and respectable in-laws, dismayed not only by his masquerading (he wants to wear the costume to work in their bank) but even more by his new-found spunkiness toward them, try to cure him of his taste for a canine disguise.

This plot serves the play's authors, Albert Belch and William H. Wright, as a ribbon on which to hang a series of sharp but amiable spoofs on the conformity required of a country-club set in a modern American suburb.

Robin Charin will play the role of the stern matriarch who tries to reign in the rebellion of her masquerading son-in-law, and Kathie Maier, David Welch, John M. Myers, Elaine F. Gubics and Robert Barton will be seen as other members of her clan who are outraged when the timid soul dresses as a dog and snarls and snaps at their hallowed conventions. Jack Godby and J. A. Carey are other members of the cast. "The Man in the Dog Suit" is under the direction of Robert Zy-romski, a member of the 1965 company who returns this season as a play director. The scenery depicting the essence of suburban life has been designed by John H. Hepler, associate professor of speech at Bowling Green and Associate Managing Director of the Playhouse.

Curtain time at The Huron Playhouse is 8 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday. Reserved seats may be obtained at the regular admission price of $1.50 for adults and 50 cents for children under twelve. Special money-saving bargain books are available.

Miles To Sing Here August 7

John Miles, a performer with the Metropolitan Opera Company, and with the New York City Opera in "Carmen Jones" and "Porgy and Bess" will give a tenor voice recital in the School of Music's recital hall at 7:30 p.m., Aug. 7.

Mr. Miles has previously performed throughout the eastern United States.

He played the role of Neil in a summer theater production of "Fiorello", and then appeared on Broadway in "Kwamina". He has performed in "The Messiah" and "Elijah" with the Mount Vernon Symphony.

Mr. Miles attended the Mannes College of Music Workshop. He was the recipient of the New York Singing Teachers Association of Negro Musicians Award in 1961.

There will be no admission charge to the concert.

Upward Bound Program Offers Students A Push

Upward Bound, the anti-poverty program designed to steer high school students into college or other types of higher education is in full swing here with daily activities featured for 120 high school juniors and seniors from Lima and Toledo.

The eight-week program is under the direction of Dr. Raymond J. Endres, associate professor of education.

The purpose of Upward Bound is to help underprivileged high school students renew their interest in learning skills for college work, said Dr. Endres.

Students from low income groups are not motivated to get good grades, they sometimes work below their capacity. This causes them to fall behind academically, he said.

There is nothing more depressing to these people than being outside of society for not keeping up with the production of the community, Dr. Endres said. "Ideally, the ultimate aim of Upward Bound is to give these students a chance to 'be somebody.'"

"If only 10 per cent of the high school students go through this program, Upward Bound will pay for itself because these students will learn to produce the goods of society, pay taxes, and be off the welfare lists," added Dr. Endres.

Approximately 80 per cent of the 100 teenagers who took part in Upward Bound last summer have returned for "phase II" of the program.

The Federal government finances 90 per cent of the program, and the University the other 10 per cent. The University acts as an agent of the state. This is the second year of the national Upward Bound program, although there were pilot programs ten years ago.

Upward Bound is working with 26,000 students nationally. About 98 per cent of the 250 programs are on university and college campuses. There are nine of these Upward Bound universities in Ohio, some of which include Wittenberg College, Western Reserve University, and Bowling Green University.

A $131,000 grant from the U. S. Office of Economic Opportunity has been used to support the program.

There are 120 Upward Bound students on campus this session. Men are living in Kohl Hall, and women in Rodgers Quadrangle.

Seventy of these programs are at senior high school level, and 50 are junior level. They attend special classes 17 hours a week with 25 hours of work a week outside of class.

The classes are small and emphasis is on discussion, although some lecture and note taking are required. A medium class section consists of 15 students, while a large class has 30 students.

Essentially an academic program, Upward Bound offers a 46 course curriculum to choose from, such as sociology, psychology, and history.

All expenses are paid by the program--from housing and classes, to meals and personal needs.

Students will receive individual help from a 37-member staff of high school and college teachers, counselors, and dormitory tutors.

Green Bay Cuts Stew Williams

Stew Williams, former Falcon grid star was cut July 28 from the Green Bay Packers of the National Football League.

Williams, a three-year star fullback with the Falcons was a sixth round draft choice of the Packers.

The 235-pound fullback was informed by Green Bay coach Vince Lombardi that he was released from the roster. It was reported that Lombardi said that the Packers would do everything possible to give him an opportunity to make the grade with another club.

"Big Stew" as many of the Bowling Green fans used to refer to him was placed on the waiver list which means that any other professional team can obtain his services.

On July 27, the day before he was cut, Williams was used sparingly in an intra-squad game.

Green Bay, National Football League champions and victors in the first Super Bowl have plenty of backfield talent on tap. Fullbacks Jim Grabowski, former Illini flash and Ben Wilson; and halfbacks Donny Anderson, Texas Tech standout, and veteran Elijah Pitts.

The acquisition of Ben Wilson, veteran of three campaigns with the Rams slimmed Stew's chance to make the club.

The Packers have 59 players on the roster after cutting three July 28. They must trim the list to 40 by the opening day of the football season.

It was just four days before on July 28 that Ed Bettridge, another former Falcon football star, was cut from Atlanta Falcon roster.

Robert Johnson Named To Post

Robert S. Johnson, former vice-president and general manager of Rex Industries in Bowling Green, has joined the University staff as assistant director of buildings and facilities.

Mr. Johnson is in charge of procuring goods and equipment for the University. F. Eugene Beatty, director of buildings and facilities, said.

He also will work with members of the University's office of institutional studies and planning to computerize various aspects of the purchasing system and to determine possibilities for improving efficiency and cutting costs.

Prior to taking an executive post with Rex Industries in 1955, Mr. Johnson managed the stainless steel division of the Kewaunee Manufacturing Company, Adrian, Mich. Under his direction the initial laboratory equipment for atomic research was designed and produced at the Kewaunee Company.

Mr. Johnson was graduated from Syracuse University.
